

Hot Line Is Open Between U.S., Moscow

By ELTON C. FAY

WASHINGTON (AP)—The historic "hot line" between Washington and Moscow is open for business — business that officials hope will never come.

Now a tinkle of a bell in the White House or Kremlin — at either end of the emergency communications system — may signal the next world crisis.

But it may also keep nervous fingers from pressing the buttons that would launch nuclear war. Completion of the circuits, made possible by a U.S.-Soviet agreement to create machinery for forestalling war, was announced last night by the Pentagon.

The direct communication link between Washington and Moscow is now "operational," said a one-sentence announcement.

The land-line and radio system is, under the terms of the agreement signed in Geneva last June 20, for use in time of emergency.

It would be used when the two chiefs of state needed to confer directly and quickly because of an incident, accidental or unauthorized, which otherwise could bring on nuclear war.

In urging adoption of the system, President Kennedy cited dangerous delays in communications between Russia and the United States during the anxious days of the Cuban crisis.

Administration officials said the line will not be used for ordinary communications between Kennedy and Premier Khrushchev or between the foreign offices of the two nations. Those communications will continue to use normal embassy channels.

The ringing of the bell, part of an elaborate system of sending and receiving Teletype machines at the alert that a message is coming.

The telegraphic tickers will stand ready from now on, day and night.

Attendants, all carefully selected and screened for security, will watch and listen. At least one of the attendants on duty at any time will be bilingual, able to read and write both Russian and English.

Hempstead SC Board Wins Honors

Each year the Goodyear Tire & Rubber Company makes awards to the Soil and Water Conservation District Boards of Supervisors. The awards are made on the outstanding amounts of Soil & Water Conservation work done by the Board of Supervisors.

Hempstead County Soil & Water District Board was selected 2nd place in the state of Arkansas.

Sloman Goodlett is chairman, Monroe Samuel, Secretary-Treasurer, Richard Arnold, Clarence, Gilbert and Emory Thompson, Board members.

This Board elected by the farmers of Hempstead County served without pay. They meet once each month for regular meeting plus call meetings for special business.

Each Board names an outstanding farmer-conservationist for the year. Charles Erwin of Bingen, who has a 60 acre irrigation lake and irrigates cotton by gravity flow, was named outstanding farmer-conservationist for Hempstead County.

He constructed a thirty thousand yard levee that impounds 60 acres of water that used to overflow and cause damage. He stopped the overflow and uses the excess water for dry weather to increase cotton production. He also does a good job of enriching the soil and controlling erosion.

The Board and Charles will be presented plaques at the State meeting in November.

AIDC Group Meet

NEWPORT, Ark. (AP)—The Arkansas Industrial Development Commission will meet Sept. 13 at Newport.

P. L. Copeland, president of the Merchants and Planters Bank at Newport and 1962-64 president of the Arkansas Bankers Association, will act as host for the meeting. He is a commission member.

Weather

Partly cloudy to cloudy today. Cloudy to partly cloudy Sunday with occasional showers late Sunday evening.

BEST SINCE 1955 — Lat Nichols of Deport, Texas, examines a stalk of his cotton which is typical of acre after acre of fine cotton being harvested in the Red River Valley. Nichols expects a bale and a half to the acre on his 135 acres. Farmers in Lamar, Red River, Fannin and Delta counties say they have the best crop of cotton since 1955.

Believes in This World of Chafing Conformity a House Painter Is the Freest Soul

By HAL BOYLE

NEW YORK (AP)—If fortune ever favors me with a rebirth, I've decided to come back to earth as a painter.

No as a Rembrandt or a Da Vinci.

No even as a Picasso or a Dali.

Just as a house painter—a plain old painter.

Not even as a Picasso or a Dali.

Just as a house painter—a plain ordinary house painter.

In a world of chafing conformity, the house painter is about the freest soul I know. He bows to no man's bidding, and yields to no woman's whim or will.

It is probably his ability to defeat a woman on her own battlefield — her home — that most makes me admire painters. You have to take off your hat to a guy who can do that.

We have had our apartment painted a number of times in the 25 years we have been married — just about as many times as my wife has been able to face up to the chaos it causes.

Each time it has been a battle of wits between my wife and the painters as to who would have their way. Each time the painters won — hands down.

It works out like this: To begin with, the painters won't even come to your apartment until you've got it in perfect order. The rugs have to be removed, the furniture stacked in piles.

Tactfully, your wife makes them coffee and sandwiches, even runs to the supermarket to get them some luncheon beer. They take these offerings with the sullen air of gods accepting unsatisfactory tribute.

It would be nice if you'd do the bedroom first, the wife then suggests.

The painters exchange looks. One silently heads for the living room, the other for the kitchen. The bedroom will be done last.

"That isn't quite the shade of blue I chose," the wife tells the man in the kitchen.

"That's the color in the bucket," says the painter, slapping another brush of it on the wall with the bold stroke of a barn sadist.

Slap...slap...slap. The painter's ears go on brushing, paying no more attention to the housewife than if she were a buzzing housefly.

When the job is done a truce is declared. Husband and wife pour drinks, and all shake hands. "I'll say one thing, lady," says one painter. You sure got good taste. This the prettiest apartment we painted all year. Eh, Joe?"

"Why not?" replies the second painter, pouring himself a second drink.

After they have gone, the wife looks around the kitchen critically and says:

"They did do a nice job, and I do like this color blue. I guess they weren't such bad fellows after all."

How do painters get away with it? What do they know about handling women the rest of us male mice don't?

Wants to Help Country, World

TOKYO (AP)—I regret that I have lived 62 years without being able to accomplish even one fine thing," said Emperor Hirohito of Japan.

From now I want to do everything within my power for the benefit of our nation," he added.

I also want to contribute to international good will.

The emperor made the statement during a news conference Thursday at his summer residence at Nasu, 90 miles north of Tokyo.

Partnership of Women, Men Needed

By GEORGE W. CORNELL
Associated Press Religion Writer

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Church leaders say a new pattern of partnership between men and women is needed.

We are beset by the conflicting ideologies of masculine paternalism and aggressive feminism," said a report by the division of ecumenical action of the World Council of Churches, which includes most Protestant and Orthodox denominations.

The male's impulse to rule the roost, and the woman's drive to outdo him are blighting relationships between the sexes, the study maintained.

Presented by Dr. Kathleen Bliss, of Sussex, England, chairman of the division, to the council's central committee today the report called for social patterns and legislation expressing the equality of men and women.

In calling for standards of equality the report said this didn't mean men or women should assume roles alien to their natures and culture.

A flurry of debate arose Wednesday after an address by Dr. Klaus Von Bismarck of Cologne, West Germany. He said churches both in the West and the Communist East sometimes confuse the gospel with state ideologies.

Churchmen from Communist countries challenged this. The Church cannot adopt Communist ideology," insisted Bishop Tibor Bartha, of Debrecen, Hungary.

But he said that in the political-economic realm, Communists in many areas are doing a splendid job.

Declared Russian Orthodox Archbishop Vitaly Borovoy of Leningrad: Even the Communists are frightened at the idea of any such confusion of the two, even if the churches attempted to promote it.

More Boys Born
LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The state Bureau of Vital Statistics says there were 6,088 boys born during the first four months of 1963 in Arkansas and 5,874 girls. The bureau reported 6,284 deaths during the same period.

Police Escort Negro Couple to New Home

By GEORGE ESPER

FOLCROFT, Pa. (AP)—A Negro couple who moved under heavy police escort through a jeering, ugly-tempered crowd into their home in a previously all-white area tried settling down today for what they hope will be a long stay in the damaged home.

More than 100 state troopers, augmented by a detail of a dozen horses, remained ready to contain any new outbursts or demonstrations such as Friday night's rock- and egg-throwing that threatened to become a riot.

State Police Maj. Singleton Shaeffer said anyone not living on the formerly peaceful street where the Horace Bakers now reside would be kept out. A thousand or more jammed into the area of modest brick row houses in this Philadelphia suburb Friday night.

The Bakers, once inside, kept all lights off.

Early today, after the crowd had dispersed, Baker, 26, came out of the house briefly and told a state trooper: Sorry I caused all this trouble. But I hope everything will turn out satisfactorily.

He shook hands with a priest on the street and several neighbors again began jeering. One shouted "Let me shake your hand, nigger."

Baker returned inside, where his wife and several companions were sitting in the dark.

By this time only a dozen troopers were patrolling in the immediate vicinity, challenging every one who appeared. However, 132 troopers in all were on call.

Baker indicated his determination to stay even before he moved into the house, whose interior had been wrecked by vandals. A fire bomb was hurled through a window early Friday.

He said: This is a challenge. And if we can't live up to a challenge, we have no place to go.

Baker, a laboratory technician for a Camden, N.J., firm said he and his wife Sara 26, a nurse at Philadelphia hospital only want a decent place to live. We will obey and respect the law, and hope other people will.

They left their 2-year-old daughter for an indefinite stay with Mrs. Baker's relatives in Sellersville, Pa.

The Bakers, under a 50-trooper escort, were unhurt. At least four persons were injured, including a trooper and patrolman, as the demonstration reached its peak hours after the Bakers had entered the row house.

Eight persons were arrested, among them a University of Pennsylvania professor, James Van Dyk, and three juveniles. Van Dyk earlier in the day had appeared in front of the house with four white ministers to lend moral support to the Negro couple.

Ex-Harvard Dean Gets Thirty Days

NEW YORK (AP)—James M. Landis, former dean of the Harvard Law School, was sentenced to 30 days in prison today on income tax charges.

Federal District Judge Sylvester J. Ryan ordered that the term be served immediately.

The sooner he serves the sentence, the better it will be for the defendant," the judge said.

Landis, who had held high positions in the federal government, pleaded guilty Aug. 2 to a five-count information charging that he failed to file timely income tax returns for the years 1956 through 1960.

The taxes since have been paid. The defense contended that Landis was so engrossed in public affairs and the affairs of his clients he had neglected his own personal matters, including the income tax returns.

One Arkansan Dies in Mine

MOAB, Utah (AP)—At least two Arkansans, one who survived and one who didn't, were among the 25 miners trapped at the bottom of a 2,700-foot potash mine shaft at Moab, Utah, after an explosion Wednesday.

Lawrence Davidson, 46, formerly of Harrison, Ark., was listed among those killed.

Charles Clark, 27, formerly of Springdale, Ark., was brought out of the mine alive.

Both men still have relatives in Arkansas.

Police Hearing Re-scheduled

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—A public hearing on the appeal of William H. Maack from his dismissal as assistant Little Rock police chief will not be held today as scheduled.

The hearing was postponed because Maack's attorney was out of town.

Little Rock Civil Service Director Coy M. Adams said the hearing would be re-set.

Maack was one of three men dismissed from the force recently. A hearing is set for Tuesday on the firing of Capt. Paul R. Terrell.

Robert E. Glasscock, fired as police chief, chose not to appeal to the Civil Service Commission and resigned.

No reason was given for the dismissals.

Questions Pact Without Reservation

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Karl E. Mundt, R-S.D., questioned today whether the top-heavy committee vote to put the limited nuclear test ban treaty before the Senate necessarily means the pact will be ratified without reservations.

He had some support among other members of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee which voted 16 to 1 Thursday to recommend ratification without the attachment of special provisos, but most Democrats and some Republicans disagreed.

Mundt was one of the majority in the committee vote, but in a statement today he pointed out that he and a number of other committeemen reserved the right to vote for any needed reservations or against ratification of the treaty itself.

Mundt, along with some of the others, said he will study any additional data on the pact from the Senate Armed Services Committee or the Senate House Atomic Energy Committee before taking a final position. Debate starts Sept. 4.

Meanwhile, retired Adm. Arthur W. Radford, former chairman of the Joint Chiefs of Staff, sharply criticized the treaty in a letter to the foreign relations committee.

Radford's statement called the pact imprecise and vague and said that unless we insist upon clarification now — we will find ourselves in great difficulties later on."

Sen. J. W. Fulbright, chairman of the foreign relations committee, predicted there will be no more than 20 votes against the pact and he expects and hopes there will be less."

Sen. George D. Aiken, R-Vt., who originally forecast at least a 4 to 1 majority, said today he would not be surprised if opponents mustered no more than 12 to 15 votes. Ratification requires a two-thirds majority, or 67 if all the 100 senators vote.

Sen. Russell B. Long, D-La., cast the only committee vote against recommending ratification without any reservation. He called Thursday's vote premature and said his action does not necessarily mean he will oppose the treaty on the floor after further study.

The treaty would ban testing in the atmosphere, under water and in outer space, but not under ground.

A formal report will be submitted Tuesday or Wednesday making clear the U.S. position that, in the event of any armed aggression endangering a vital interest of the United States, this nation will be the sole judge as to when and where it will use its nuclear weapons in self-defense or in support of its allies.

Fulbright said there will be no effort to rush action in the Senate, saying he favors a full and thorough discussion."

He added he doesn't believe debate should take more than a week.

Rabid Bat Bites Crossett Youth

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The state Health Department said today that a bat which bit a 7-year-old boy at Crossett Monday was rabid.

Dr. Harvie R. Ellis, director of the Division of Veterinary Medicine of the department, said the child was bitten on the finger as he tried to remove the bat from a tree.

Dr. Ellis said treatment of the child against rabies was started the same day.

It was the third case of rabies reported to the Health Department this week. Clay County authorities reported a rabid dog and Hot Spring County officers reported a rabid fox.

Five cases of rabies in bats have been found in Arkansas this year.

Just Remember You Smoke for the Good of Your State and Not for Your Own Good

By MARY ANITA LASETER

To smoke or not to smoke is definitely a personal matter and the decision is entirely up to the individual. But some of the publicity backed by authoritative facts presented to the public recently make for more serious contemplation than in many, many, many years.

The Encyclopedia Britannica describes tobacco as having the most wide-spread use of any narcotic or stimulant. Though few of us would put it into such devastating a category as narcotics, basically that is what it is.

On a paper, approximately colored like orange flame, the Division of Communicable Disease Control warns "man has buried his head in smoke and what is worse he has done so in spite of knowledge of its adverse effects on the human body."

No doubt the person who wrote that (and, believe me, much more!) is a non-smoker. They can always tell how and why to stop failing to the addition, just as an old maid is usually the best authority on rearing children.

There must be "something to" what authorities are saying, and have said for a long time, about the harmful effects of tobacco on the human body. Coaches recognize it, and demand No Smoking be enforced among their athletes. Doctors who have patients with respiratory ailments certainly recognize it, and demand total abstinence under penalty of death—literally.

Who got the smoking idea started anyway? The first that modern man knew of tobacco was when explorers found it in Mexico and introduced it to Spain in 1553. Since then, tobacco has found growth in fields from Quebec to South Africa. Virginian tobacco constitutes the bulk of the world's supply today.

It was Britain where the smoking of tobacco was first introduced to Europe. And now Britain's International TV Authority has banned 5 types of cigarette commercials. They are (those which 1) overemphasize the pleasure obtained from smoking; 2) appeal to pride; 3) feature young people's conventional heroes; 4) use settings to support the impression that smoking is essential to modern living; and 5) link romance to smoking.

But tobacco plays an important role in the economy of the U. S. A. We couldn't afford to take any rash steps like the British. Think of all the people who would be added to Uncle Sam's relief rolls if the tobacco industry were curtailed. From those in the tobacco fields to those in the entertainment fields, from slogan writers to salesmen, to say nothing of tax collectors, all would find the going anything but "mild and pleasant to the taste."

In Arkansas the biggest headache created without tobacco tax revenue would be felt by the schools. The educational progress of Arkansas would be curbed without the annual $10 million plus derived from this lucrative source. And nobody wants that to happen.

The next time one of those warnings about harmful tobacco stares you in the face, find comfort in the thought that you are smoking for the good of your state. It's not for your own good, so you can even—by a remote stroke of the imagination—say you are being unselfish and charitable.

U.S. Won't Release 2 Buddhists

SAIGON, Viet Nam (AP)—Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge reportedly has rejected new demands by the South Vietnamese government that the United States surrender two Buddhist monks who were granted asylum in the U.S. mission.

The move was interpreted as a toughening of U.S. policy toward the regime of President Ngo Dinh Diem and could precipitate a diplomatic clash. The South Vietnamese demand was made by acting Foreign Minister Truong Cong Cui.

The two monks escaped from government troops who raided the Xa Loi pagoda, which is near the American building, Aug. 20.

On Wednesday, the Diem regime sharply rejected U.S. criticism of the crackdown on Buddhists, saying Washington acted on erroneous information.

As if to underscore the U.S. rebuke of Diem's regime for raiding pagodas and making mass arrests of monks and nuns, Lodge conferred with the two monks even before he presented his credentials as the new U.S. envoy to South Viet Nam last week.

Diplomats believe the issue of the two monks is a relatively minor one, underscoring an actual U.S. demand for the ouster of Diem's powerful brother, Ngo Dinh Nhu, from the palace as a condition for continued American support of the Diem regime.

Nhu, head of the secret police, and his fiery wife have been frequent critics of the United States. Despite assurances from Washington that the United States will continue to provide aid to fight the Communist Viet Cong, officials believe there is a good chance the funds, about $1.5 million daily, may be reduced.

Search Fails to Find Third Missing Miner

By STANFORD H. BENJAMIN

HAZLETON, Pa. (AP)—A courageous volunteer has ended speculation that missing miner Louis Bova might be entombed in the same underground chamber from which two companions were rescued.

With this hope for finding the 54-year-old Bova ended, drillers continued work today on several 100-yard deep shafts which might provide some clue to the whereabouts of Bova who has been missing since a mine cave-in at nearby Shepton Aug. 13.

So hazardous was the mission performed Friday night by volunteer Andy Drebitko, 36, of Pottsville, that his identity was not disclosed until after he had been hauled back up a 300-foot shaft and reported no trace of Bova.

The shaft went to the chamber from which Bova's companions, David Fellin, 58, and Henry Throne, 28, had been rescued last Tuesday after two weeks entombment.

A remote-controlled television camera lowered into the chamber for testing and exploration had picked up what H.B. Charnbury, Pennsylvania secretary of mines, had said appeared to be the image of a man.

Drebitko reported: What appeared to be the image of a man was the remains of a plug that had been used to close up the 12-inch hole before they widened it to 18 inches and brought Fellin and Throne to the surface. Rope was curled around the plug.

My inspection of the area where Fellin and Throne had been," Drebitko said, "indicated that it would have been impossible to tunnel from there to where Bova might be entombed on the opposite side of the slope."

As soon as Drebitko made his report, the drilling rigs — which had been quiet along with everything else except a generator supplying power for electric light — started to churn again.

Drebitko, about 5-foot-8, was lowered into the shaft by about a dozen men, holding onto a thick rope. Two dozen others manned three safety lines.

Charnbury said that a 22-inch hole already started east of the Fellin-Throne escape hatch had gone past the 150-foot mark and would be driven to the bottom in the continuing search for Bova.

18 Years, U.S. Still in East Crisis

By CONRAD FINK

TOKYO (AP)—There was death in Viet Nam's jungles, political intrigue in Saigon. There was discontent in dusty Seoul; economic crisis and international wheeling and dealing in a host of other places.

The fighting, squabbling and hunger were far from America's shores but the United States was up to its neck in all of it.

After 18 years of bloody, expensive American involvement in the Far East, there were as many crises as ever and the United States was receiving as many hot-potato questions as ever before.

The American creed, spread with missionary-like zeal, was democracy, anti-communism and economic stability — hopefully all three at the same time.

The cost of evangelism was high. In Viet Nam the cost stood at $1.5 million a day and 96 American lives so far. No end was in sight.

It is almost impossible to calculate the total cost of America's attempt to guide the destinies of millions of the Far East since World War II.

You could add the 96 Americans killed in Viet Nam to the 20,617 who died in the 1950-53 Korean War. But that overlooks those who died unsung—Special Forces men lost in combat in places like Laos and pilots who disappeared in the Japan Sea on training flights.

Accountants of the Agency for International Development are more specific in adding up the dollar cost: $13.7 billion for economic aid and $8.1 billion for military aid in the Far East from July 1, 1945 to June 30, 1962.

Surveying the results, an AID man in Tokyo said: It's a discouraging business we're in.

There was no mistaking that the discouraging business was America's baby. Asia's resurgent power, Japan, wanted to avoid entanglement and continue making money. The French were long gone from Viet Nam, the Dutch a memory in Indonesia, the British almost impotent in areas they once ruled with dash and vigor.

All were onlookers and their attitude may have been summed up in Tokyo by a French newspaperman who whirled on his American listeners and heatedly declared:

You wanted to replace us in Indochina and you did. Well, let's see you do better."

One thing seemed clear. But for America's involvement, the Soviets' hammer and sickle on Red China's five yellow stars on a field of red would be in many places where they are not.

Restoration of Aid Cut Asked by JFK

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—President Kennedy appealed today for restoration of foreign aid funds slashed by the House, saying freedom does not come easily or cheaply and the full program is needed at a time of very intense peaceful coexistence.

Standing with Kennedy at an impromptu press conference, Gen. Lucius Clay said that in slicing $600 million from the aid authorization bill, the House has gone too far and seriously endangered the program.

Clay, chairman of a committee that recommended gradual reduction of aid programs earlier this year, said he was particularly disturbed about reductions in funds for military assistance and the Alliance For Progress in

Old Friends Cheer Up Photographer

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Henry Griffin, an Associated Press photographer, went to the hospital, his old friends wanted to cheer him.

So he got phone calls from President Kennedy and former Presidents Eisenhower and Truman. Kennedy also wrote a letter as did Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson and scores of senators and representatives.

At 47, Griffin is a legend, and as friendly, as unabashed as noisy as cheerfully democratic as a pack of Alfreddale puppies.

The hundreds who know him with his loud, husky voice and his loud braying laugh, were shocked at the diagnosis: Cancer of the throat. And there's relief that although his voice box has been removed, he is getting along nicely.

I just wanted you to know," Kennedy wrote. That we will be thinking of you, and at the bottom he scrawled in his own hand: Best of Luck."

Offhand, Griff doesn't appear like the type of world's great cotton to be. He got through a year of high school, but all that education didn't corrupt the primitive man. His talk remained puny, and on him, it sounded natural.

On Jan. 2, 1932 he joined the AP in his native Baltimore and soon showed the stuff required for the rough life of a spot news photographer.

A year later, he came to Washington. Then, the war: North Africa, Italy, France, Germany, Poland. In December 1945, he was back home.

Legends become impossible to unravel. It certainly was true that he once almost knocked Eisenhower out.

This came on Nov. 4, 1952, at the end of Ike's presidential campaign. The general was posing for pictures in Boston, and Griff was trying to move a clock that messed up the shot. But it slipped, and down it went on Eisenhower's bald head.

For once Griff was mortified. He fled—and returned only after Eisenhower, his wound swelling but not serious, insisted he come back.

It's also true he fell for Truman. Griffin was on a press plane accompanying Truman to Kansas City. The ramp was pushed up to the door, and then unaccountably removed. Griff, always in a hurry, fell 12 feet to the concrete below.

He fractured six ribs, one of which pierced a lung. Truman sent his own physician, Gen. Wallace Graham, along to make sure Griff got the best of care.

Well, it seems strange to find noisy, brash Griff silenced, forced to learn to speak again and now reduced to tapping out replies over the phone, two taps for yes, one for no.

volves aid for Latin America. Kennedy said it is important that the American people understand that this affects security and the balance of power all over the world."

He argued that if Congress does not restore the money, this means the United States will not fulfill its obligations of the Alliance For Progress—it would limit very much our ability to influence events."

Asked if he wanted the full $4.5 billion he asked originally, Kennedy said he wants to get as much of that amount as he can but recognizes some reductions are inevitable.

Kennedy at first planned to seek $4.9 billion for aid but voluntarily kipped $400 million from that amount after the Clay committee recommended a cutback. The House, then cut the total to $3.5 billion.

Kennedy, Clay, Aid Director David E. Bell and presidential assistant Ralph Dungan conferred for more than an hour at Kennedy's seaside summer home here.

This beauty-wise teenager is a step ahead of the crowd with constant hair care and the newest styling. She starts with the basic shampoo (top left) and uses a creamy lotion shampoo if she has dry hair; clear shampoo for oily hair. For a quick pick-up of a collapsed hairdo, she winds it dry on rollers (top right) and sprays lightly with a conditioning hair spray; then brushes it into place. For height at the crown, she teases her hair slightly (bottom left), excessive teasing is out, and (bottom right) she shows off the smooth, sleek looks she chose for back-to-school wear. Her hair is added body from an ammonia, at-home permanent.

Almost All Cotton Picked by Machines

By WICK TEMPLE

Gone are the days when the strong hand picked most of Arkansas' cotton. This fall picking machines will harvest 80 per cent of the crop.

The harvest is underway and the machines creep through the fields in every cotton-growing section of the state, says Harold Ohlendorf, president of the Arkansas Farm Bureau.

But the machines did not drive laborers from the fields, say sources informed on the farm labor situation.

There has been a steady decline in farm workers since the end of World War II and farmers had to buy the machines to assure harvesting of their crops, said George Ropp of the Farm Labor Division of the state Employment Security Division.

There has been no actual displacement of workers by machines," Ropp said. "The machines came to alleviate the shortage of workers."

Ohlendorf agrees. Most people don't want to do that kind of work any more," he said. Low wages and poor conditions drove workers out of the fields by the thousands. Many of them moved to Arkansas cities, but Ropp says most of them went north.

There is still a demand for farm laborers to harvest the 20 per cent of the crop the machines don't touch. In 1962, 70,330 workers applied to the ESD for farm jobs and 68,633 were placed in jobs.

The Mexican farm labor program was instituted to make up shortages caused by the exodus from the farms, but now Congress is phasing out that program and the demand for domestic workers will be a greater than ever.

And the ESD also is conducting an intensive campaign to get people to run the cotton picking machines.

Ropp said there were 6,815 machines in Arkansas in 1962, 4,410 one-row pickers and 2,405 two-row machines. The Agricultural Extension Service of the University of Arkansas says the number of two-row machines is increasing as farmers trade in their one-row pickers.

Ohlendorf says a one-row machine can pick 150 acres of a crop in a season. That's five to 10 ginned bales a day depending on how much cotton is open in a field.

A good field hand can pick 200 to 300 pounds of seed cotton a day, Ohlendorf said, and it takes 1,500 pounds of seed cotton to make a 500-pound ginned bale.

LARGE ORDER

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: I am seeking a book or treatise on the legal aspects of marriage. Could you tell me what rules and responsibilities are ethical, moral and legal? It is essential that I familiarize myself with marriage laws in the United States, particularly Connecticut.

Also, what are the financial responsibilities of a husband and the status of a working wife? Should not they pool finances, husband as senior partner and head of the household, wife as junior partner and helpmate? Has he the authority to direct the spending of these resources for their common good?

And how about bills? Can it be legally established that the wife, bringing no money into the union, thought working, owns nothing but that all moneys are the common property of both? In other words, not I, but we? —Concerned Husband.

Dear Concerned: I am not a lawyer but I do have something of the detective in me. Reading between the lines of your letter I gather that, although your wife works, she does not contribute financially to your marriage in the way you think she should.

Generally speaking, unless bankrupt, you are legally responsible for the bills. However, while the wife is not liable, there are certain exceptions. A lawyer is checking them for me. I shall print the answers in next Saturday's column.

Meanwhile, read Francis W. Kuchler's Law of Marriage. And don't forget, husbands (not wives) can be sued for nonsupport. While this may seem economically unfair the historical and sociological justification is unquestionable.

Ideally, husband and wife should be equal partners, each having one vote on the distribution and expenditure of their resources.

Many a gullible wife has been hornsogged into all sorts of disastrous financial schemes by the alleged authority of the so-called senior partner since the husband is not always more practical in money matters than his wife. In fact, from what I have observed, it is more likely to be the other way around.

The moral and ethical responsibilities of marriage partners are usually determined by your religion. Indirectly, they are also governed by the various grounds for divorce established by the different states. In Connecticut they are: adultery, cruelty, alcoholism, desertion, felony fraudulent contract and five years of insanity.

In regard to wills most states rule that the surviving spouse is entitled to one-half, or one-third, of the deceased's estate. But in all matters of law your safest bet is to consult an attorney. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my leaflet, Financial Troubles. Much of it deals with the questions you raise.

Dear Helen: Thank you so much for answering my letter. I am treating Mother as the child she acts like (your suggestion) in the hope she will become woman enough to apologize to my husband for the way she treated him.

—Willing to Try.

Dear Willing: Changing one's own attitude often means winning the battle, or at least two-thirds of it. Being realistic about your mother and seeing her for the spoiled child she is, gave you the clue as how to handle her. Carry the psychology a step further and assume, as with any child, that she would like to be adult in her actions.

Have you a problem? Perhaps Helen Worden Erskine can help you. Write her care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

DANCE OF LIFE - Dancing red beads suspended in a plastic tube can alert anyone to radioactive fallout in the atmosphere. In new detection device shown above, the beads are usually held in suspension by static electricity produced when the instrument is gently shaken. But if any radioactivity is present, the static electricity is neutralized and the beads fall to the bottom of the tube.

18 Years, U.S. Still in East Crisis

By CONRAD FINK

TOKYO (AP)—There was death in Viet Nam's jungles, political intrigue in Saigon. There was discontent in dusty Seoul; economic crisis and international wheeling and dealing in a host of other places.

The fighting, squabbling and hunger were far from America's shores but the United States was up to its neck in all of it.

After 18 years of bloody, expensive American involvement in the Far East, there were as many crises as ever and the United States was receiving as many hot-potato questions as ever before.

The American creed, spread with missionary-like zeal, was democracy, anti-communism and economic stability — hopefully all three at the same time.

The cost of evangelism was high. In Viet Nam the cost stood at $1.5 million a day and 96 American lives so far. No end was in sight.

It is almost impossible to calculate the total cost of America's efforts to guide the destinies of millions of the Far East since World War II.

You could add the 96 Americans killed in Viet Nam to the 20,617 who died in the 1950-53 Korean War. But that overlooks those who died unsung—Special Forces men lost in combat in places like Laos and pilots who disappeared in the Japan Sea on training flights.

Accountants of the Agency for International Development are more specific in adding up the dollar cost: $13.7 billion for economic aid and $8.1 billion for military aid in the Far East from July 1, 1945 to June 30, 1962.

Surveying the results, an AID man in Tokyo said: "It's a discouraging business we're in." There was no mistaking that the discouraging business was America's baby. Asia's resurgent power, Japan, wanted to avoid entanglement and continue making money. The French were long gone from Viet Nam, the Dutch a memory in Indonesia, the British almost impotent in areas they once ruled with dash and vigor.

All were onlookers and their attitude may have been summed up in Tokyo by a French newspaperman who whirled on his American listeners and heatedly declared:

"You wanted to replace us in Indochina and you did. Well, let's see you do better."

One thing seemed clear. But for America's involvement, the Soviets' hammer and sickle on Red China's five yellow stars on a field of red would be in many places where they are not.

Restoration of Aid Cut Asked by JFK

HYANNIS PORT, Mass. (AP)—President Kennedy appealed today for restoration of foreign aid funds slashed by the House, saying freedom does not come easily or cheaply and the full program is needed at a time of very intense peaceful coexistence.

Standing with Kennedy at an impromptu press conference, Gen. Lucius Clay said that in slicing $600 million from the aid authorization bill, the House has gone too far and seriously endangered the program.

Clay, chairman of a committee that recommended gradual reduction of aid programs earlier this year, said he was particularly disturbed about reductions in funds for military assistance and the Alliance For Progress.

Old Friends Cheer Up Photographer

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — When Henry Griffin, an Associated Press photographer, went to the hospital, his old friends wanted to cheer him.

So he got phone calls from President Kennedy and former Presidents Eisenhower and Truman. Kennedy also wrote a letter as did Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson and scores of senators and representatives.

At 47, Griffin is a legend, and as friendly, as unabashed and as noisy as cheerfully democratic as a pack of Airedale puppies.

The hundreds who know him with his loud, husky voice and his loud braying laugh, were shocked at the diagnosis: Cancer of the throat. And there's relief that although his voice box has been removed, he is getting along nicely.

"I just wanted you to know," Kennedy wrote, "that we will be thinking of you," and at the bottom he scrawled in his own hand "Best of Luck."

Offhand, Griffin doesn't appear like the type the world's great cotton to. He got through a year of high school, but all that education didn't corrupt the primitive man. His talk remained pungent, and on him, it sounded natural.

On Jan. 2, 1933 he joined the AP in his native Baltimore and soon showed the stuff required for the rough life of a spot news photographer.

A year later, he came to Washington. Then, the war: North Africa, Italy, France, Germany, Poland. In December 1945, he was back home.

Legends become impossible to unravel. It certainly was true that he once almost knocked Eisenhower out.

This came on Nov. 4, 1952, at the end of Ike's presidential campaign. The general was posing for pictures in Boston, and Griffin was trying to move a clock that messed up the shot. But it slipped, and down it went on Eisenhower's bald head.

For once Griffin was mortified. He fled—and returned only after Eisenhower, his wound swelling but not serious, insisted he come back.

It's also true he fell for Truman. Griffin was on a press plane accompanying Truman to Kansas City. The ramp was pushed up to the door, and then unaccountably removed. Griffin, always in a hurry, fell 12 feet to the concrete below.

He fractured six ribs, one of which pierced a lung.

Truman sent his own physician, Gen. Wallace Graham, along to make sure Griffin got the best of care.

Well, it seems strange to find noisy, brash Griffin silenced, forced to learn to speak again and now reduced to tapping out replies over the phone, two taps for yes, one for no.

He argued that if Congress does not restore the money, this means the United States will not fulfill its obligations of the Alliance For Progress—it would limit very much our ability to influence events.

Asked if he wanted the full $4.5 billion he asked originally, Kennedy said he wants to get as much of that amount as he can but recognizes some reductions are inevitable.

Kennedy at first planned to seek $4.9 billion for aid but voluntarily lopped $400 million from that amount after the Clay committee recommended a cutback. The House, then cut the total to $3.5 billion.

Kennedy, Clay, Aid Director David E. Bell and presidential assistant Ralph Dungan conferred for more than an hour at Kennedy's seaside summer home here.

Almost All Cotton Picked by Machines

By WICK TEMPLE

Gone are the days when the strong hand picked most of Arkansas' cotton. This fall picking machines will harvest 80 per cent of the crop.

The harvest is underway and the machines creep through the fields in every cotton-growing section of the state, says Harold Ohlendorf, president of the Arkansas Farm Bureau.

But the machines did not drive laborers from the fields, say sources informed on the farm labor situation.

There has been a steady decline in farm workers since the end of World War II and farmers had to buy the machines to assure harvesting of their crops, said George Ropp of the Farm Labor Division of the state Employment Security Division.

There has been no actual displacement of workers by machines, Ropp said. "The machines came to alleviate the shortage of workers."

Ohlendorf agrees. Most people don't want to do that kind of work any more," he said. Low wages and poor conditions drove workers out of the fields by the thousands. Many of them moved to Arkansas cities, but Ropp says most of them went north.

There is still a demand for farm laborers to harvest the 20 per cent of the crop the machines don't touch. In 1962, 70,330 workers applied to the ESD for farm jobs and 68,633 were placed in jobs.

The Mexican farm labor program was instituted to make up shortages caused by the exodus from the farms, but now Congress is phasing out that program and the demand for domestic workers will be a greater than ever.

And the ESD also is conducting an intensive campaign to get people to run the cotton picking machines.

Ropp said there were 9,815 machines in Arkansas in 1962, 4,410 one-row pickers and 2,405 two-row machines. The Agricultural Extension Service of the University of Arkansas says the number of two-row machines is increasing as farmers trade in their one-row pickers.

Ohlendorf says a one-row machine can pick 150 acres of a crop in a season. That's five to 10 ginned bales a day depending on how much cotton is open in a field.

A good field hand can pick 200 to 300 pounds of seed cotton a day, Ohlendorf said, and it takes 1,500 pounds of seed cotton to make a 500-pound ginned bale.

LARGE ORDER!

By HELEN WORDEN ERSKINE

Dear Helen: I am seeking a book or treatise on the legal aspects of marriage. Could you tell me what rules and responsibilities are ethical, moral and legal? It is essential that I familiarize myself with marriage laws in the United States, particularly Connecticut.

Also, what are the financial responsibilities of a husband and the status of a working wife? Should not they pool finances, husband as senior partner and head of the household, wife as junior partner and helpmate? Has he the authority to direct the spending of these resources for their common good?

And how about bills? Can it be legally established that the wife, bringing no money into the union, thought working, owns nothing but that all moneys are the common property of both? In other words, not I, but we? —Concerned Husband.

Dear Concerned: I am not a lawyer but I do have something of the detective in me. Reading between the lines of your letter I gather that, although your wife works, she does not contribute financially to your marriage in the way you think she should. Generally speaking, unless bankrupt, you are legally responsible for the bills. However, while the wife is not liable, there are certain exceptions. A lawyer is checking them for me. I shall print the answers in next Saturday's column.

Meanwhile, read Francis W. Kuchler's "Law of Marriage." And don't forget, husbands (not wives) can be sued for nonsupport. While this may seem economically unfair the historical and sociological justification is unquestionable.

Ideally, husband and wife should be equal partners, each having one vote on the distribution and expenditure of their resources. Many a glib wife has been hornswoggled into all sorts of disastrous financial schemes by the alleged authority of the so-called senior partner since the husband is not always more practical in money matters than his wife. In fact, from what I have observed, it is more likely to be the other way around.

The moral and ethical responsibilities of marriage partners are usually determined by your religion. Indirectly, they are also governed by the various grounds for divorce established by the different states. In Connecticut they are: adultery, cruelty, alcoholism, desertion, felony fraudulent contract and five years of insanity.

In regard to wills most states rule that the surviving spouse is entitled to one-half, or one-third, of the deceased's estate. But in all matters of law your safest bet is to consult an attorney. Send a stamped, self-addressed envelope for my leaflet, "Financial Troubles." Much of it deals with the questions you raise.

Dear Helen: Thank you so much for answering my letter. I am treating Mother as the child she acts like (your suggestion). In the hope she will become woman enough to apologize to my husband for the way she treated him. —Willing to Try.

Dear Willing: Changing one's own attitude often means winning the battle, or at least two-thirds of it. Being realistic about your mother and seeing her for the spoiled child she is, gave you the clue as how to handle her. Carry the psychology a step further and assume, as with any child, that she would like to be adult in her actions.

Have you a problem? Perhaps Helen Worden Erskine can help you. Write her care of this newspaper, enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Confident 'Best Man' Will Win

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — With the 1964 presidential election approaching, United Artists is confident "The Best Man" will win.

The company is backing a film version of the hit play by Gore Vidal and giving it a presidential cast. Starring are Henry Fonda (Young Mr. Lincoln) and Cliff Robertson (PT 109). There also is Lee Tracy, who played the third role, that of the peppery ex-president, on Broadway.

Adapting the play to film is Vidal. Part of the deal when he sold the film rights was that he would go along as adapter.

He sold a hit play, "Visit to a Small Planet," to the movies and it ended up as a vehicle for Jerry Lewis.

I didn't see the Lewis picture, but I read the script," said Vidal. As far as I could see, they used none of my material."

"The Best Man" was first placed in the hands of Frank Capra, whose Mr. Smith Goes to Washington" and state of the Union" made him seem a natural. But the collaboration soured.

The project was revived by producers Stuart Miller and Larry Turman. It will be in the theaters by next spring, when the presidential fever should be pitched high.

I'm very pleased at the prospects," said Vidal. The casting is fine, and I'm delighted that Lee Tracy will be doing his part. I take credit for that.

Although the play is more than three years old, Vidal said little updating was needed.

"The Best Man" concerns chicanery within a party convention and was written by a political insider. Vidal is the grandson of a senator and himself ran unsuccessfully for Congress. He admitted to having some help with the play.

President Kennedy read the first draft and gave me a couple of lines," said Vidal. One thing he told me was there was one way to be sure when a politician was going to knife you. That was when he said in parting, "Just let me know if there's anything I can do for you."

Describe March as Inspired, Tired

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—Twenty-three Little Rock and North Little Rock persons who took part in the civil rights march at Washington Wednesday said on their arrival home Thursday night they were tired, but inspired and convinced the purpose of the demonstration was accomplished.

The group left Little Rock Monday night by chartered bus. They were joined by 10 more persons at West Memphis.

The tenor was optimistic. The words heard most often were "Freedom Now" with emphasis on "now." Rev. Walter B. Clancy said of the mood of the marchers. Clancy, professor of sociology and canon law at St. John's Seminary, was one of three white persons on the bus. He represented the Catholic Interracial Council.

Hunters Warned About Missiles

LITTLE ROCK (AP)—The Little Rock Air Force Base has warned hunters to keep away from Titan II missile sites.

Chief Warrant Officer Sidney R. Bolton said each site is surrounded by a three-strand barbed wire fence and that this is the boundary for hunters.

He said anyone inside the area could violate U.S. trespass laws. Bolton also asked hunters to use extreme care when firing guns in the missile site areas.

Smith Had Unique Fight Debut

LOS ANGELES (AP)—It must be conceded that middleweight boxer Johnny Smith, who gets his first big break in a national television bout Saturday, had a unique debut in the ring.

The first fight I ever saw, I was in it," Johnny explained. Yes, he lost it. But lean, long-legged Johnny, who calls Los Angeles home now hopes for better luck Saturday night.

He meets a seasoned craftsman, George Benton of Philadelphia, at the Olympic Auditorium. The 10-rounder goes on at 9 p.m., EST, with ABC-TV screening it for the nation's home viewers.

The 30-year-old Benton, the nation's No. 4 ranked 160 pounder, is favored.

Johnny, 24, has won 22 out of 28 fights; 18 on knockouts.

Fans Cheer Player

MADRID (AP)—More than 500 cheering fans greeted Argentine-born soccer star Alfredo di Stefano today on his return from Caracas, Venezuela, where he was kidnapped and held for three days by pro-Communist terrorists.

The terrorists, members of the Armed Forces for National Liberation, said they kidnapped the center-forward of Spain's Real Madrid soccer team Aug. 24 to publicize their fight against the pro-Western government of President Romulo Betancourt.

BANCROFT'S BANCO BY NELSON C. NYE

By NELSON C. NYE
XXIV

A few days ago, after such an experience, I would probably have stayed back there where the water let go of me, along with Ybarra's dead peon, too stupid with abuse to care if school kept or not. But rage, I was discovering, could be a mighty stimulant, inexorably demanding as the tug of war.

That crazy old man! How I blazed! Without this fury I probably never would have made it. When the tiles and rain damp walls of Villalobos finally showed through the never ending up-thrusts of cedar I was stumbling along like a tangle-footed drunk, as near to being off my rocker as a man is likely to come without getting there. I do recall being helped into the house through a phalanx of peering, anxious faces, of collapsing onto a darkening sofa—the confused gabble of questions.

The next I remember is the whitewashed ceiling of ocotillo wands laid over adzed timbers at which I found myself staring. At some point in this mixture of dream life and real I discovered the gypsies burlap walls, bright with cheerful warmth of sunlight, and knew myself to be in a room.

Time in this interlude had no meaning. I was completely divorced from the demands of the quick. I came eventually to know how spartan were the facts of this gray-white dimension bounding me on every side, to see and understand the frugal practicality of its observable cell-like furnishings.

Except for the wooden crucifix the walls were bare as an empty plate. There was this bed I was in and home-crafted chair which, upon occasion, I found occupied by the buxom, shawl-draped presence of Linda's dumpy duena, one Marisca by name.

The patron — I gasped, only to subside with an astonished grimace as the room swam past in dizzying waves. She held a dipper to my mouth. The baile — I cried; and felt the coolness of her hand pressing me back against the sheets.

I suppose I was fed and rather generally looked after. All I recall with clarity of that time is the hook-nosed face of Ybarra standing over me, smiling with indulgence when—no doubt with considerable petulance—I demanded to know what had been done with my clothes.

It must have seemed to him pretty childish. I can't bring back his words any more by much of his expression, except I'm certain he did not laugh. He possibly imagined I was more to be pitied than anything else. He was much too grand and courtly and polite to have allowed any lapse of manners to come between us. I suppose, looking back . . .

But speculation is idle. The man probably had his reasons for putting up with me. I had no sense of this then. I extracted from his presence only a feeling of remote sadness, a kind of vast tolerance, imperturbable as the land itself. I was determined, I remember, not to miss the big doings for which I had come at such risk to Villalobos.

The baile, my friend, Ybarra said with a sigh, is eight nights past. He considered me with patience. I trust the bed agrees with you?"

I expect I gaped like a simpleton. Eight nights—it wasn't possible! Don Alfredo, clapping his hands, summoned a mozo. In a lowered voice he said something in Spanish. The man hurried off.

He returned with a glass-and-tin Mexican mirror which, at Ybarra's nod, he held up in front of me. I stared aghast at the whiskered wild-eyed look of the hollow-cheeked stranger peering back at me, one side of his head a swath of white bandaging.

You'll be all right now

Christ made the laboring man a great promise. The proclaiming of Labor Day as a national holiday might not be a coincidence after all. In St. Matthew, the Lord promised rest to all those who labor and are heavy laden. Thus the National Holiday was set aside in respect to all those who work together to make our nation strong and free. God is on the side of the working man, but He has no use for the nonproducers — the drones — the sluggards — the usurpers. In Corinthians, He makes it very plain that every man shall receive his own reward, according to his own labor. Then, let us not gloat over past accomplishments. Let us put our shoulders to the wheel for greater achievements. As we honor our working women and men, let us reflect on all the good fortunes of every American laborer. And may we reverently think on God as we celebrate, as we pay our respects, for we know, a man's work is born with him.
